Notice re Hudson County Register

The office of the Hudson County Register has moved from its 40+ year location at the Hudson County Administration Building at 595 Newark Avenue in Jersey City to the former Block Drug Company building located at 257 Cornelison Avenue in Jersey City.

Now called the Hudson County Center, the building also provides a new home for the Hudson County Sheriff's Department. We understand the Hudson County Economic Development Authority, the County Board of Taxation, as well as the building's owner, the Hudson County Improvement Authority which paid a reported $13,000,000 for the 320,000 square foot building in 2005, and other Hudson County offices will be moving to the Center.

The Surrogate's Court and County Clerk remain in their present locations which, frankly, makes it difficult for title searchers to complete a title examination without traveling back and forth between those offices in the Administration Building and Brennan Court House and the Center several times a day. We are stymied by the lack of convenient or sufficient parking for visitors to the building. In addition, because the building is located on a curve at the midpoint of a steep hill we urge you to exercise caution when approaching by car.

Documents to be recorded may be mailed or sent by overnight service to:
